from the desk of Father Baier...

This has been an incredibly difficult week for us as a community. I give thanks to God that he is showing us slowly a way forward. I give thanks to Austin Smith for a life well lived and for the many blessings that he shared with us in this community. I give thanks for the way I see all of you supporting one another and supporting our firefighters as they suffer through and process this loss. The procession through town with Austin's remains escorted by our firefighters was a testimony to the love we have for Austin Smith, for his family, and for all who put their lives in harm's way to protect us. What a turn-out of support! May God be with us as we mourn and struggle to move forward remembering the witness of Austin.

Hope is the remedy. If you remember my bulletin article on hope a few months back you remember that hope is a supernatural virtue that reminds to hope for heaven above all earthly things. This life on earth is transitory, we are all passing away eventually. "Heaven and Earth will pass away, but my words will not pass away" (Matthew 24:35). It is true that we are rooted deeply in this world, it is where we work, rest, pray, laugh, and mourn. It is what we know. It is here that are our friends and family. However, God asks us to root ourselves even more deeply in his Word. How do we trust in moments when life is taken so quickly from us, that God is still taking care of us? I place my trust in the mercy of God for those who have died and I offer my prayers for them that they have turned to God in love asking to be with their creator.

Blessings and Peace,

Father Scott Baier
